

On the Sun and the Moon Being Inhabited

Fred C. Collier

2014

Taken from Fred C. Collier's Facebook posts in 2014, these revelatory statements discuss teachings from past leaders of the Restored Church that the Sun and Moon are inhabited. He presents both cosmic bodies as hollow orbs, organized in the same manner in which our hollow earth was formed, as set forth in The Book of Revelations, which further elucidates the scriptural accounts we possess as being told from the interior perspective of our planet. He distinguishes an outer surface from an inner dwelling place, and thus provides his interpretation of similar statements by Joseph Smith, Brigham Young, and Oliver B. Huntington.

Published by Collier's Publishing Co.

thechurchofthefirstborn.com

On the Sun and the Moon Being Inhabited

by
Fred C. Collier

—————) (—————

On the Sun Being Inhabited

“And now with regard to the Sun Being Inhabited as the Prophet Joseph Smith and President Brigham Young taught — actually the inside of the Sun is like a Honey Comb — and on the inside it is a cool place — It is a Beautiful and Heavenly place on the inside — while at one and the same time, it is incredibly hot on the outside. So it’s sort of like the Sun has a fire wall on the outside which draws heat out of the inner Sun in order to keep it a cool place — and this Fire Wall serves to keep the Devil and other unwanted things out, while at the same time it kind of acts like an air conditioner.”

— Fred C. Collier (October 4, 2014)

On the Moon Being Inhabited

“With regard to what Oliver Huntington wrote regarding the Moon being “Inhabited”. Actually that is misunderstood just a little bit. If men don’t live “On the Moon”, they nonetheless live “in the Moon” — inasmuch as the moon is Hollow.

Way back when, NASA sent unmanned lunar landers to the moon. If I remember right, it took them 11 attempts to soft land on the Moon, before they finally succeeded. In their unsuccessful attempts to soft land the Lunar Landers would either go bounding out into space, or they would crash land. The reason they had a hard time producing a computerize soft landing on the moon was because they did not know where the center of Gravity was. Of course being evolutionists, they believed that the moon was Billions of years old, and therefore that the moon would be enveloped in 60 plus feet of Lunar Dust. This is why they designed the lunar landers with huge dish-like feet. But when they finally did succeed at an unmanned soft landing on the moon, with their lunar landers, much to their surprise they discovered that there was only 3 inches of dust on the moon, rather than 60 feet — which among other things proves that the moon was not Billions of years old. Again the reason that they had so many failures at soft landing was because they did not know where the center of Gravity was. This was because they did not yet know was that the moon was hollow. So thinking that it was a solid ball, they could not figure where the center of Gravity was. When they finally succeeded, their little robots got out and tried to obtain core samples by drilling wholes in the surface of the moon. But they had problems with that also, because the surface of the moon was incredibly hard and their drill bits kept breaking. The robots stationed seismographic instruments on the surface to record the moons inner sounds. What they discovered was that the surface of the moon was composed of a Titanium Alloy, which was incredibly hard — that the moon was hollow, and that its skin was 60 miles thick. After the Robots had set up their instruments, and gathered samples, the Robots loaded them into the Lunar Lander and it took off. When the Lunar Lander took off, after burning the first stage of the Rocket Engine, they had separation, whereupon the first stage began to be drawn back into the Lunar Gravity field, and finally it crash landed on the moon's surface. When this occurred, the seismographic instruments recorded sounds wherein it rang like a gong for several days.

The point is that there may not be an atmosphere on the outer surface of the moon, but that does not prove that there is not an atmosphere inside of the moon. In which case, as the Prophet said 'the moon is inhabited'.

Of course, NASA decided to keep all this newly discovered info from the public — but it leaked anyway — there were three books that were published on it back at the time — one of which if I remember right, was called, "The Paper Moon".

— Fred C. Collier (October 4, 2014)

For more, visit: thechurchofthefirstborn.com